ANKIT RAJ SAXENA is from Mumbai, India, and earned his Bachelor’s degree in Computer Science from VIT University. After interning at two organizations within the fields of Data Science and Big Data Analysis, he realized the Computer Science program was the most ideal for his career growth. Ankit’s desire to help people around him grow led him to work for Make a Difference (MAD), an NGO in India where he taught English and Math at orphanages. During his free time, he likes to travel, take photos, and explore the food and culture of new places.

PEACE OBISESAN ISCA Fellow, is a graduate student at the Elliott School of International Affairs. She’s pursuing an MA in International Affairs with a focus in US Foreign Policy and East Asia.
